

Analysis of A Life Path #9

THE HUMANITARIAN, THE PRESERVATIONIST

The 9 has the heart of a superhero, they are the kind of person that wants to save the world. They are here realizing that they need to be needed. They will always come to the rescue when someone needs help. They are the most evolved number in numerology so they can tend to hold others small and even feel sorry for other people, helping because they feel others may not be capable of helping themselves. 9s tend to feel the need to take care of other people. There is an intimidating quality of the 9 that makes others jealous and even competitive. There are people around them that always want to challenge them.

People feel the 9s evolved energy and tend to become competitive with them. 9s are natural leaders; people will always assume they know what is going on, even when they don't. Many 9s have people walk up to them in a department store or school, thinking they are a manager or teacher. People just assume the 9 is in charge.

9s feel very attached to their family, especially their parents. They are constantly checking up on them and are the ones in the family who take their older parents to doctor's appointments and handle their personal affairs. 9s tend to have a strong attachment to their original family and can easily feel unloved or abandoned by their mother or father. They are very sensitive and can feel picked on by their siblings. This attachment to their family is hard for them to give up. People around them tend to take advantage of their kind nature. This would be the prime cause for mistaking kindness for weakness.

9s make wonderful loving parents. They really put their children first and strive to be the "perfect parent". They have to remember not to take the things their children do personally. They feel too responsible for their children, and this can lead to a lot of pain for them. It is very hard for 9s to let go. They have a very hard time letting go of the past. They have to learn to forgive especially themselves for mistakes they have made. We are all human and every experience has a specific reason for being on our journey. It is for our growth and personal evolution. 9s need to not take life so hard and must go easier on themselves. Like the 1s they can have a mental bully that lives in their head.

9s need to learn to let go of the past and take action on the future. The weight of the past makes life heavy for the 9, causing them to constantly be sluggish, or lazy. They will usually be late to parties or events because they are lagers and procrastinate at most things that they need to do. If they would put focus on developing the habit of taking action rather than procrastinating they would do a lot of positive things for humanity making this world a better place. They have to let go of their pasts and look at life's lessons as something positive that has made them greater. They are happiest when they are serving humanity.

9s have a hard time speaking up when they have a need. They want to serve and have a hard time receiving. This causes suffering as their needs go unmet. They think that if their partners really loved them they would know they were in need. However, 9s need to be reminded that other people are not mind readers and have to learn to communicate their feelings. They need to let their guard down and speak up when they need a hug or kiss. 9s are always taking care of other people so it is easy for others to assume that the 9 is perfectly fine when in actuality they are in deep need. 9s have to communicate and give others the opportunity to also feel the satisfaction of giving. When you allow yourself to Receive, you give others the blessed gift of giving. A lot of people have a hard time Receiving and this is definitely true for the 9.

9s always pull off whatever they set out to do; It's just a gift that they have. Somehow things just seem to work things out, but there are always many lessons for the 9 to learn along the way. Their life lessons are for their greatest purpose of learning and giving back to others. They are very respectful to everyone and do not misuse their power when in positions of authority. They are creative at work and will need flexibility. They tend to be slower workers, but have brilliant minds so they will not sell you short if you encourage them to share their ideas and help the company/team grow. They can be very hard on themselves if just one thing goes wrong. They need to constantly let go of the past and learn to forgive themselves for being human.

There is also a really intimidating quality to the 9. Sometimes people will be jealous or competitive with the 9, yet the 9 competes with no one. The 9 is simply doing the best they can, but some people see them as a threat. Simple words or compliments will put people at ease and make them feel better with the 9. 9s can be seen by others as condescending or patronizing. They like a good debate and they love to be right. They can talk down to people at times and need to make others feel at ease with genuine compliments. People will always follow their lead, even in attitude.

9s are great at giving advice and counseling others. They are great teachers and have the patience to work with difficult people. They are amazing with children and find that children always want to be around them. 9s are great teachers. They are expressive in decorating. They will always find themselves helping others or donating to charity. They truly want to make this world a better place. They can be poetic and make good writers. You may find them as doctors, and nurses; or working with handicap or elderly. They have lots of compassion for the weaker person.

It is very important for the 9s to let go of their past and not dwell there. If they can let go, get into the moment, they'll make the biggest difference and fulfill what they are here to do!
